Company: Avature

Location: Buenos Aires

Category: computer-and-mathematical

Sherlock is our event-sourcing engine that allows users to report on their data according to their needs and goals. As a developer in the Sherlock team, you will contribute in a fast-growing and challenging project that is taking our product to the next level.

Your challenges and objectives:

Analyze and implement solutions and enhancements for our event-sourcing engine.

Achieve a rounded knowledge of our platform by understanding the complex interaction of a wide range of areas and services, from network layer to final user.

Work on a product that involves several computer science areas, such as highly available and performant systems, top-notch security standards, and intuitive user interface design.

Build a highly flexible platform which allows users to customize it through tailored configurations and UI options.

Learn, collaborate with different teams and grow while tackling complex technical challenges in a fun and encouraging working environment.

Your day-to-day activities:

Work with the Product Team on functional specifications of features (specs): interpret and analyze, but also give feedback for them.

Design and write the code for the feature.

Perform technical analysis of existing code and perform refactors to improve code quality.

Perform code review.

Promote and apply best practices during the entire development process, from the very early stages of technical analysis and design of solutions, to the monitoring in production.

About you:

Superior analytical/troubleshooting skills

Expertise in data structures, algorithms, and complexity analysis

Fluency in OOP programming languages, preferably PHP, JavaScript, Java, C++, or Python

Experience or background in event sourcing architectures

Knowledge of Apache Spark, Apache Kafka, Apache Flink, Apache Beam, Docker, Kubernetes is a plus.

Experience with Data Lakes is a plus.

Open source experience or contribution with any Linux/Unix distribution is always welcome.
