Location: Barracas

Category: business-and-financial-operations

Job purpose

Ernst & Young (“EY”) helps clients operate more effectively in moving goods around the world.

EY established a Global Trade team to help clients manage export and import classifications, assist with Free Trade Agreements (“FTA”) solicitation and qualification analysis, identify other government agencies (“OGA”) requirements, and review client transactions. The Global Trade team consists of a dedicated team of trained individuals responsible for analysing the technical characteristics of products and assigning proper export and import classifications, conducting analysis if products qualify for FTAs, identifying OGA requirements and screening client’s transactions against different lists of sanctioned parties.

Your client responsibilities

Global Trade team members are responsible for reviewing the technical properties of a good, assigning the proper import classification based upon the Harmonized Tariff Schedule (“HTS”), and assigning export classification numbers (“ECN”) for goods, using appropriate software tools and via collaboration with local EY Global Trade resources.

Global Trade team members are also responsible for conducting analysis whether products are eligible for FTAs, identifying OGA requirements, and reviewing client’s sales to determine whether those should be released or escalated to the next level of review.

The role of the International Trade Staff will include the following.

Monitor and manage a workload of classification/transaction assignments sent from the clients

Execute key processes and documentation to effectively and timely manage assignments
