Who You Are

We are building our Data Engineering team to tackle HomeLight's diverse, data challenges. This position is an excellent opportunity for an engineer that wants to own the development, optimization, and operation of our data pipeline, which collects, processes, and distributes data to a suite of HomeLight products and teams. You will provide mission-critical data to both our algorithms and internal users, refining our product and identifying new markets.

What You'll Do Here

Some projects you will work on:

Optimize and execute on requests to pull, analyze, interpret and visualize data

Partner with team leaders across the organization to build out and iterate on team, and individual performance metrics

Optimize our data release processes, and partner with team leads to iterate on and improve existing data pipelines.

Design and develop systems that ingest and transform our data streams using the latest tools.

Design, build, and integrate new cutting-edge databases and data warehouses, develop new data schemas and figure out new innovative ways of storing and representing our data.

Research, architect, build, and test robust, highly available and massively scalable systems, software, and services.

What You Bring

Experience writing and executing complex SQL queries

Experience building data pipelines and ETL design (implementation and maintenance)

Scrum/Agile software development process.

Bonus points for

Familiarity with chatgpt, transcription analysis

Familiarity with AWS, Elasticsearch, Django

Experience setting up and managing internal API services.

Experience working on a small team, ideally at a startup.
