Limbic is making quality mental healthcare available to everyone, everywhere.

Limbic's vision is to ensure the highest quality therapy is accessible to everyone, everywhere. The way we do that is by deploying AI responsibly, using it to augment clinical care and reduce barriers to accessing therapy at scale. Limbic is already used in over 33% of Talking Therapies in the NHS and is deemed safe and effective after successfully gaining UKCA Class IIa certification, the only AI mental health decision support tool to do so.

What you will be doing:

You will be part of the Limbic Access US team, and work with them to meet business requirements.

More specifically you will:

    Contribute to our backend/frontend repositories

    Continually improve code quality under coding standards, best practices and through automation and code reviews

    Build, test and ship new (well tested) features

    Integrate 3rd party patient management systems (EHRs) from mental health institutes all around the US

Bonus if you've got experience developing open source projects and have a strong foothold in an engineering community.

You should apply if:

You're excited by the opportunity to solve the biggest problem in (mental) healthcare today

You want to join a company you can grow with

You can move fast and get stuff done

You enjoy building elegant solutions to complicated problems

You enjoy getting your hands dirty with complicated data structures

You are about beautifully built products and want a place to perfect your craft

Requirements
