DEPT® Argentina is growing fast and we're looking for folks that want to work with peers and clients that enjoy and build great products together. DEPT® is a pioneering, global digital agency that creates end-to-end digital experiences for brands such as Google, KFC, Philips, Audi, Twitch, Patagonia, eBay and more. Our goal is simple: build a culture that inspires the best work of your life. Work that helps move our clients forward. And while it's not our ultimate goal, winning awards sure does feel nice when it happens.

About Us:

Some of the things that we believe in:

Great UI/UX is critical; aesthetics, animations, copy and speed are all part of this

Code quality is a top priority; style guides, code reviews, best practices

Collaboration; great communication is the key to any project

Constantly curious; we're constantly learning/evolving through guild meetings, lunch & learns, conferences and practice

A healthy work/life balance; getting home in time for dinner is important

We focus on building great products with clients that we enjoy and respect. Our work has improved people's lives, been seen by millions of users, featured in the app stores, had books written about it, featured in the press, received awards and, most importantly, brought delight to users.

We are growing fast and looking for individuals that are passionate about the development process and not timid about working directly with clients.

We are looking for a Senior level Drupal/PHP Developer who has been involved in a lot of amazing projects and knows how to help a client achieve their goals. As a good developer, you know that there is often more than one solution to a problem. With your expertise, you look for that one solution that is best for the client. And you are able to explain in plain language why this is the best solution for them. You are also a mentor to the other developers.

As an experienced developer, you will use your firm knowledge to identify, document and implement solutions for our clients. As well as working on your own tasks and projects, you'll work together with front-end developers and designers in an integrated team, working perhaps on one large or multiple smaller projects.

About You:

Have experience and are comfortable with Drupal 9

Have Git repository and release management experience

Will contribute ideas and efforts towards internal projects and work as part of a team to find solutions on various problems

You feel comfortable using english on a daily basis, having at least an upper intermediate oral level

Have at least 5+ years of work experience on projects

Are focused on quality assurance

Have a high level of professionalism, enthusiasm and are eager to learn with a drive to grow

Are analytically strong

Have a team player mindset, good communication skills and good command of English

Show initiative

Understand problems even when they are very complex

Are able to think on your feet, challenging the norm and allowing you to give relevant and personalized solutions to customers based on your knowledge and experience when put on the spot

Are one of those ambitious people who can switch from serious to play in a heartbeat

Most importantly you are delivery focused. You want to ship something to users, get their feedback and iterate. The drive to ship something enables you to take down obstacles and break hard problems into solvable chunks so that you can make forward progress. We are recruiting talented experts. You'll be eager to learn and inspire others, a futurist at heart, and someone who wants to celebrate our achievements, big or small.
